MENTAL HEALTH & SUBSTANCE ABUSE

The Partnership
for a Healthier Carroll County

HealthyCarroll.org

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am delighted to introduce the 2017 edition of the Carroll County Behavioral Health Directory. The Partnership for a Healthier Carroll County coordinates this effort along with key community members and organizations. In particular, The Partnership wishes to recognize the leadership and expertise of the Carroll County Public Library, the Carroll County Health Department, Carroll Hospital, the Get Connected Family Resource Center, and the financial contribution of the Rotary Club of Bonds Meadow.

The Partnership is the coordinating hub that connects agencies and individuals to build capacity for improving the health and quality of life in Carroll County. This Directory highlights our county's ongoing tradition of teamwork and collaboration.

The directory was designed to identify local programs and providers in the areas of mental health and substance abuse, as well as to highlight resources in areas such as prevention, education and employment, disability services, clothing, food, shelter and legal issues. We also provide lists of regional and national organizations that may be of use in obtaining materials and identifying additional sources of information.

Every effort was made to provide accurate and useful information. The entries are current as of the date of publication, but please refer to our website, www.healthycarroll.org for any updates that we receive. From the website, you will be able to download and print sections of the guide that are most important to you and your family. Please note, the directory is not meant as an endorsement of any of the agencies or providers. This is also not an exhaustive list; there are other services for which you may be eligible.

We hope this directory proves to be valuable for community members and professionals as a starting point to learn more about the wide range of Behavioral Health resources in Carroll County.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES OF RECOVERY

Recovery emerges from hope: The belief that recovery is real provides the essential and motivating message of a better future – that people can and do overcome the internal and external challenges, barriers, and obstacles that confront them.

Recovery is person-driven: Self-determination and self-direction are the foundations for recovery as individuals define their own life goals and design their unique path(s).

Recovery occurs via many pathways: Individuals are unique with distinct needs, strengths, preferences, goals, culture, and backgrounds—including trauma experiences – that affect and determine their pathway(s) to recovery. Abstinence is the safest approach for those with substance use disorders.

Recovery is holistic: Recovery encompasses an individual's whole life, including mind, body, spirit, and community. The array of services and supports available should be integrated and coordinated.

Recovery is supported by peers and allies: Mutual support and mutual aid groups, including the sharing of experiential knowledge and skills, as well as social learning, play an invaluable role in recovery.

Recovery is supported through relationship and social networks: An important factor in the recovery process is the presence and involvement of people who believe in the person's ability to recover; who offer hope, support, and encouragement; and who also suggest strategies and resources for change.

Recovery is culturally-based and influenced: Culture and cultural background in all of its diverse representations – including values, traditions, and beliefs – are keys in determining a person's journey and unique pathway to recovery.

Recovery is supported by addressing trauma: Services and supports should be trauma-informed to foster safety (physical and emotional) and trust, as well and promote choice, empowerment, and collaboration.

Recovery involves individual, family, and community strengths and responsibility: Individuals, families, and communities have strengths and resources that serve as a foundation for recovery.

Recovery is based on respect: Community, systems, and societal acceptance and appreciation for people affected by mental health and substance use problems – including protecting their rights and eliminating discrimination – are crucial in achieving recovery.

SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS OF DRUG ABUSE & ADDICTION

Sometimes it is tough to tell. Most people won't walk up to someone they're close to and ask for help. In fact, they will probably do everything possible to deny or hide the problem. But, there are certain warning signs that may indicate that someone is using drugs and drinking too much alcohol.

Common signs and symptoms of drug abuse:

- Neglected responsibilities at school, work, or home (e.g. flunking classes, skipping work, neglecting your children) because of drug use.
- Using drugs under dangerous conditions or taking risks while high, such as driving while on drugs, using dirty needles, or having unprotected sex.
- Drug use is causing legal trouble, such as arrests for disorderly conduct, driving under the influence, or stealing to support a drug habit.
- Drug use is causing problems in relationships, such as fights with a partner or family members, an unhappy boss, or the loss of old friends.

Common signs and symptoms of drug addiction:

- A drug tolerance is built up. More of the drug is needed to experience the same effect one used to attain with smaller amounts.
- Drugs are taken to avoid or relieve withdrawal symptoms. Going too long without drugs causes symptoms such as nausea, restlessness, insomnia, depression, sweating, shaking, and anxiety.
- Lost control over the drug use. Often doing drugs or using more than planned, even when promising self not to. Wants to stop using, but feels powerless.
- Life revolves around drug use. Spends a lot of time using and thinking about drugs, figuring out how to get them, and recovering from the drug's effects.
- Abandoned activities previously enjoyed, such as hobbies, sports, and socializing, because of drug use.
- Continues to use drugs, despite knowing it hurts you. Drug use causes major problems — blackouts, infections, mood swings, depression, paranoia — but uses anyway.

Unless you observe drug use or excessive drinking, it can be hard to determine the cause of these problems. Your first step is to contact a qualified alcohol and drug professional in your area who can give you further advice.

Drug and alcohol problems can affect every one of us regardless of age, sex, race, marital status, place of residence, income level, or lifestyle. Drug abusers often try to conceal their symptoms and downplay their problem. If you're worried that a friend or family member might be abusing drugs, look for the following warning signs.

Physical warning signs of drug abuse:

- Bloodshot eyes, pupils larger or smaller than usual.
- Changes in appetite or sleep patterns. Sudden weight loss or gain.
- Deterioration of physical appearance, personal grooming habits.
- Unusual smells on breath, body, or clothing.
- Tremors, slurred speech, or impaired coordination.

Behavioral signs of drug abuse:

- Drop in attendance and performance at work or school.
- Unexplained need for money or financial problems. May borrow or steal to get it.
- Engaging in secretive or suspicious behaviors.
- Sudden change in friends, favorite hangouts, and hobbies.
- Frequently getting into trouble (fights, accidents, illegal activities).

Psychological warning signs of drug abuse:

- Unexplained change in personality or attitude.
- Sudden mood swings, irritability, or angry outbursts.
- Periods of unusual hyperactivity, agitation, or giddiness.
- Lack of motivation; appears lethargic or "spaced out."
- Appears fearful, anxious, or paranoid, with no reason.

THE LINK BETWEEN SUBSTANCE ABUSE & SEXUAL VIOLENCE

The relationship between substance abuse and sexual violence goes both ways. People who have experienced sexual violence are more likely to abuse substances. At the same time, people who abuse substances are at a higher risk to become victims of sexual violence.

Substance abuse and sexual assault both carry a great deal of social stigma, but when a victim/survivor has experienced both, the stigma can be especially difficult to overcome. This can compound the challenges of the healing process. For example, the media constantly reinforces the idea that drinking and sex go hand-in-hand, which can contribute to feelings of shame and self-blame. Even if a victim of sexual assault willingly drank alcohol or took drugs, the victim is not at fault for being assaulted.

Increased Chances of Becoming a Victim of Sexual Violence:

Sexual violence can happen to anyone, but certain risk factors and vulnerabilities can increase the likelihood of it happening to you. Abuse of alcohol and/or drugs is one of these factors. The stereotypical rape scenario does not involve drinking or drugs; however, in reality, it often does. A high percentage of adult victims were intoxicated at the time of their assault, and therefore unable to give consent.

Alcohol and drug use have been shown to increase vulnerability to violence through exposure to unsafe situations. Teens with drug problems are 18-21 times more likely to be sexually abused. Approximately one-half of all sexual assault victims report that they were drinking alcohol at the time of their assault. This does not mean that substance use causes sexual violence, but rather suggests that perpetrators target victims who are perceived as vulnerable. Perpetrators often use substances to incapacitate their victims in order to facilitate a sexual assault. Alcohol is the drug most commonly used by perpetrators to help commit sexual assault.

Increased Chances of Substance Abuse:

Subsequently, victims of sexual assault may use alcohol or drugs to cope with their feelings after the assault. Many victims experience Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), or similar symptoms, including shock, flashbacks, intense emotions, and painful memories. Rape victims are 3.4 times more likely to use marijuana, 5.3 times more likely to use prescription drugs for non- medicinal purposes, 6.4 times more likely to use cocaine, and 10 times more likely to use hard drugs other than cocaine.

Studies have shown a strong relationship between substance abuse and sexual abuse, even for those who did not use substances prior to the assault. Men and women reporting sexual abuse have higher rates of alcohol and drug use disorders than other men and women. Abuse victims reported initiating substance use earlier than their non-abused peers.

Men and women who experienced childhood sexual abuse are even more at risk for substance abuse issues later in life. Nearly 90% of alcoholic women were sexually abused as children or suffered severe violence at the hands of the parent.

Seeking Treatment as a Victim and Substance Abuser:

When seeking help for dealing with substance abuse and sexual violence, it is important that treatment deals with both components and their interaction because they are intertwined. The key to effective treatment is a thorough professional evaluation and the development of an individualized treatment plan to deal with these issues.
